Workshop Description: Participants will have an opportunity to engage in both didactic presentations and discussions to develop an understanding of human grief from both a personal and theoretical basis.

General and specific aspects of clinical interventions will be presented via review of illustrative case material.

Workshop Objectives:

1. Participants will be able to describe the role that our own loss material can play in diminishing or informing our service to a grieving client.
2. Participants will be able to describe the survival basis origin of grief response and list the determinant factors of an individual’s grief.
3. Participants will be able to list the features of both typical and atypical grief for adults as well as for children and adolescents
4. Participants will be able to list and describe the three general modes for healing grieving people.
5. Participants will be able to describe each of the Four Tasks of Grieving-Healing.
6. Participants will be able to describe three specific interventions for helping grieving people for each of the Four Tasks of Grieving-Healing.
7. Participants will be able to describe three specific interventions for working with: – grieving children and adolescents (Part A); – grieving adults and families (Part B).
